Other Reductions Will Be Sought in Governor's Budget; Would Limit Defense To Probe Industry
Legislature Is Requested to Investigate State Milk Industry

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP)—Republican majority legislators steered today toward a financial goal giving more state funds to town and county highways while reducing other expenses to permit lowering Governor Lehman's new budget.

The party aim, privately expressed by leaders, was the majority's first step in the five-week session toward forming a financial program. Simultaneously, a legislative policy on defense legislation developed with agreement to limit its effect to one year.

Concern over highways was reflected on another front as the Senate unanimously approved a resolution memorializing Congress to make about $60,000,000 available to the state to enable construction of 3,200 miles of defense highways.

The measure which went to the Assembly for expected concurrence termed construction of a military highway system a "vital part of any preparedness program."

Determination to restore at least a major part of a $1,500,000 reduction provided by the governor's appropriations for town and county highways came after lawmakers returned to the Capitol from their first home contacts since announcement of the proposed budget.

The $385,000,000 fiscal program, while $9,000,000 less than current appropriations, also brought expression of Republican dissatisfaction over a proposed $250,000 fund for county fairs. The 1940 Legislature—with Democratic objections—approved a $400,000 expenditure.

Restoration of these cuts, which majority party chieftains viewed as a blow at Republican upstate areas, would require frequent use of the economy axe on other items leaders admitted, to achieve a reduction in the total appropriations.

"At least that's our goal," one influential Republican legislator said. "We want to be able to show the voters in next year's important elections that we have cut the state budget every year since 1939."

Milk Probe Is Asked
Request for an investigation of New York's milk industry in an effort to reduce the spread between the amount paid farmers and the price paid by consumers also confronted the Legislature today.

In proposing the inquiry, Assemblyman Daniel Flynn, New York city Democrat, said "Large milk dealer corporations are exacting excessive profits" adversely affecting both farmers and consumers.

Other bills would: Permit cities to purchase, process and sell milk and milk products for their own and consumers' use. (Assemblyman Louis Bennett, Bronx Democrat.)

Require sheriffs to appoint maroons in county jails confirming charges. (Senator James W. Riley, Ulster Republican.)

Prohibit advertising by licensed end users of any interest charges on loans of $300 or under unless expressed as the yearly rate. (Assemblyman Dutton S. Peterson, Schuylar Republican.)

Require a two-thirds vote, instead of the present majority, to establish rural and high school districts. (Assemblyman Fred S. Hollowell, Yates Republican.)

Prohibit manufacture, possession or sale of pin-ball machines. (Assemblyman Christopher Lawrence, Westchester Republican.)

Macy Is Nominated
W. Kingsland Macy, former Republican state chairman, was nominated for the board of regents today with solid support of the party's legislative majority despite Democratic protest against his fitness.

Nomination is equivalent to election, scheduled to be held tomorrow.

With balloting in both houses following party lines, the Senate voted 28 for Macy, present Suffolk county Republican chairman, to 11 for Dr. George J. Ryan, Queens member of the regents, whose term will expire April 1. The assembly vote was 80 to 44.

The balloting stirred a minority protest in the assembly which characterized Macy as "an as little qualified as an educator as anyone to come before its house."

Darlan Has Message for Frenchmen

Laval Is Said to Want Broader Power Than He Held Prior to His Dismissal
To Pick Big Three

Darlan, Huntziger and Laval May Be Named to Authority

Vichy, France, Feb. 4 (AP)—Admiral Jean Darlan left Paris shortly before noon today to bring back to Vichy a message, presumably from former Vice Premier Pierre Laval, with whom he conferred yesterday on Laval's conditions for returning to a position in the French government, informed sources here said. He was reported to be traveling alone.

Admiral Darlan, French navy minister and envoy from Chief of State Philippe Petain, talked with Laval several hours yesterday in a move by the Vichy government to meet increasing German pressure that Laval be returned to a position of authority.

Friends of Laval declared last night the deposed Vice Premier, once heir apparent to Petain's post, would have even broader power than he held until his dismissal from the cabinet last December 13.

They said he would ask for: An important cabinet portfolio, possibly his former job of foreign minister.

Full charge of France's negotiations with Germany, which have made little progress since December, and a definite agreement with the French government on what constitutes collaboration with the Reich.

Control of Information
Control of all information services in France and of the police. Changes in Petain's national council of 51, set up last month.

French political circles expected the Darlan-Laval conference to bring important changes, broadening French-German collaboration and perhaps concentrating cabinet power in a triumvirate of ministers under Petain.

It was said the new "big three" under the chief of state might be Admiral Darlan, War Minister Gen. Charles Huntziger and Laval.

The present foreign minister, Pierre-Étienne Flandin, who succeeded Laval, conferred yesterday with Admiral William D. Leahy, United States ambassador.

Some sources said the two discussed the French domestic situation.

Admiral Darlan's train trip to the German-occupied former capital of France was regarded by French observers as a definite concession—the second Petain has made—to influence pressing for strengthened collaboration.

The first was last January 18, when Petain met Laval near the line separating occupied and unoccupied France and announced afterward their "misunderstanding" had been "dissipated."

Ellenville Broker Killed When Gun Fires by Accident

John Dunlop Was Getting Ready to Clean Rifle; McHugh Renders Accident Verdict

John Dunlop, 49, who for many years conducted an insurance and real estate business in Ellenville, and widely known throughout southwestern Ulster, met almost instant death about 1 o'clock Monday afternoon through the accidental discharge of a rifle he was preparing to clean.

The tragedy, which took place in the rear room of Mr. Dunlop's office in the Canal street end of the Wayside Inn building, Mr. Dunlop being alone at the time, was first discovered by Harold B. Gillette, Ellenville coal dealer, who entered the office to pay an insurance bill.

Mr. Gillette at once notified Officer Frank Groppe, who happened along at the time and the latter called Dr. Orran M. Roberts, who on his arrival pronounced the man dead.

Coroner Jesse McHugh of Wallkill was notified and made an immediate investigation, following which he issued a verdict of accidental death by shooting.

Coroner's Investigation
The coroner said that the investigation disclosed that Mr. Dunlop was still alive when the shooting was first discovered, about 12:55. The 30-30 bullet from a Remington rifle had entered his left eye, emerging from the back of the head, with mushrooming.

Army May Blast Wreckage, If Search Yields Bomber

McChord Field Chief Denies Plane Carried Army Bomb Sight; 7 May Be Dead

Morton, Wash., Feb. 4 (AP)—With military secrecy, a force of soldiers and state and county officials started today into a thickly wooded region in quest of a wrecked army bomber which two rancher-woodsmen reported sighting yesterday.

A bomber, with seven officers aboard, disappeared January 16 on a flight from McChord Field, Wash. It was feared, should this prove to be the wreckage, that all seven men were killed. The woodsmen said there was no sign of life.

Major C. B. Overacker, commander of the 73rd bombardment squadron, to which the plane and crew belonged, said remains of the bomber probably would be dynamited after all possible salvage.

Col. Walter Peck, operations chief at McChord Field, denied flatly to newsmen early today that the big plane which vanished from there was equipped with an army bomb sight. Previously he had expressed belief the craft had carried some type of bomb sight.

Colonel Peck said, however, that he would not be convinced the hill residents had discovered the bomber wreckage "until I actually see it." He said the conflicting reports he had received in the past two weeks had made him skeptical.

The men who brought word of the wreckage were Harry Studhalter and Tom Harper. Although authorities did not allow them to be questioned, Major Overacker said they told of seeing scattered (Continued on Page Five)

WHEELER SAYS ARMY HAS NOT SINGLE MODERN COMBAT PLANE

President Batista Holds Arms Chiefs To End 'Sedition'

Constitutional Guarantees Suspended for 15 Days After Head of Cuba Announces Crisis

Havana, Feb. 4 (AP)—President Fulgencio Batista, in a series of firm measures he declared were "forced" upon him to keep order, placed under arrest today the chiefs of the nation's armed forces whom he had ousted a few hours earlier on charges of a "seditionist attitude," and suspended constitutional guarantees for 15 days.

Soon afterwards, the strong-man president formally announced a "deep crisis which endangered the stability of the republic has been overcome, and order and tranquility prevail again."

Batista held personal control of the army for several hours after ousting its chief, then turned that command over to Col. Manuel Lopez Migoya. He already has appointed new chiefs of the navy and national police in steps he declared necessary to "repress" the alleged sedition and "reestablish public order."

Protective measures included the mounting of machine-guns and barricades at entrances to the presidential palace.

Those Arrested
Those arrested were Col. Jose Pedraza, army chief since Dec. 6, 1939, and national police chief since Saturday, and Lieut. Col. Angela Gonzalez, ousted navy chief. Pedraza had been army chief since Batista resigned the post to run for the presidency.

One provincial army leader, Lieut. Col. Ramon Gutierrez, the late Bernard Yoepp, Sr., who has been employed for a year at the local store of Sears Roebuck & Co., will leave tonight for Chicago. Following a field trip, Mr. Yoepp will be in the office of C. W. Caldwell, director of retail store personnel for the parent organization of the Sears company. Mr. Yoepp is a graduate of Kingston High School, Washington and Lee University and he attended law school at Cornell University. Prior to his employment at the local Sears Roebuck store he was with the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Co., where he worked both in the local office and at Poughkeepsie. Mr. Yoepp's mother will join him in Chicago about March 1. R. C. Clements, local Sears manager, said of the transfer, "We who are associated here with Mr. Yoepp are pleased at his promotion and our best wishes go with him."

Cuban Congress To Meet
An official announcement said the Cuban congress would meet within 48 hours to "act according to circumstances."

Previously, the congress had been scheduled to head today a presidential message requesting an income tax and approval of a new law "for defense of democracy," which was said to be intended to check totalitarian propaganda and activities.

As a precautionary measure, the army took over public utilities, including the buildings of the Cuban telephone and electric companies. The suspension of constitutional guarantees, it was explained, leaves civilian officials in charge of maintaining public order, but will enable authorities to make arrests without having to present cases to courts within 72 hours, and will give police investigation facilities.

Overthrow of the army and navy commanders was accomplished without apparent violence.

Col. Julio Volasquez, inspector general of the army, announced "no seditionist movement was registered in Cuban armed forces. The army, navy, and national police kept complete discipline, obeying President Batista's orders."

Death for Norwegians
Oslo, Norway (via Berlin), Feb. 4 (AP)—Three Norwegians were sentenced to death today by a German military court at Bergen, Norway, on charges of sending information to the British by radio. The information was said to have aided the British in bombing raids. A fourth Norwegian was sentenced to five years and two others were acquitted.

Rome, Berlin Report New British Losses

British Admiralty Also Tells of Sea Losses, Sets Total Week Ending Jan. 26 as 33,604 Tons; British Carry Out Attacks on Derna Highway

(By The Associated Press)

In London, the admiralty announced that nine British and Allied merchant ships totalling 33,604 tons were lost "by enemy action" in the week ending January 26.

By coincidence, both Rome and Berlin announced new inroads against British shipping in the apparently quickening war at sea.

Hitler's high command reported 43,000 tons sent to the bottom—

29,000 tons by a German warship "operating overseas," 11,000 tons by a Nazi U-boat, and 3,000 tons by German dive-bombers.

Premier Mussolini's high command reported a spectacular raid by Italian torpedo boats last night against "an enemy convoy strongly escorted by cruisers and destroyers" in the Red Sea.

"Attacking decisively," the Fascist high command said, "our vessels launched a total of nine torpedoes, of which seven hit ships. Our units, despite strong enemy reaction, succeeded in getting away and returned to their base unharmed."

The RAF's one-two raid on Brest was the 35th on the German-occupied port at the west gateway of the English Channel.

Returning pilots said both attacks were successful.

The RAF assault followed a night of intermittent raids on Britain by lone German planes which dropped incendiary bombs on London and explosives at two places in East Anglia.

The British said the German raids at no time reached serious proportions, and that first started in the capital were extinguished before much damage was done. No casualties were reported.

Road Is Bombed
On the North African front, the British reported last night their attacks on the coastal road from captured Derna to Benghazi and on the area around the important west Libyan port of Tripoli, 400 miles to the west. Observers interpreted these raids as preludes to an all-out assault aimed at capture of Benghazi and swift completion of the conquest of eastern Libya.

There was no indication whether the attack on Tripoli was launched from newly won British bases in Libya, or from the Mediterranean base at Malta, only 200 miles from the objective.

Reports from East Africa indicated the British offensive was being speeded there in an attempt to crush Italian resistance before March, when sweltering heat and torrential spring rains might hold up operations.

The British declared they were in undisputed possession of frontier areas in Eritrea, Ethiopia and Somaliland and driving steadily deeper into all three Italian colonies. Greatest progress was reported in Eritrea, across which the British have driven a wedge half way to the Red Sea.

Further Italian reverses were reported on the Albanian battlefield, where the Greeks said they had gained control of the strategically important Trebisina mountain range north of Klisura. Italian counter attacks on Greek positions there were said to have failed.

Indications of a German victory on the diplomatic front were seen by observers in reports from Vichy that French Chief of State Marshal Petain soon might restore former Vice Premier Pierre Laval to his cabinet to meet Nazi pressure.

Laval is regarded generally as an advocate of French-German "collaboration," toward which little progress has been made since his dismissal by Petain last Dec. 13. French Naval Minister Admiral (Continued on Page Nine)

Federal Circuit Court Rules N. L. R. B. Should Not Police Situation Where Agreement Has Been Reached

Philadelphia, Feb. 4 (AP)—A federal circuit court ruling that it is not a function of the National Labor Relations Board to "police relations" between employer and employee after a collectively bargained agreement has been signed gave the board a new interpretation of a part of its duties today.

"The board is concerned with only those situations in which an employer and his employees have not reached an agreement," the third circuit court of appeals held.

"It is no part of its (the board's) duty to police the relations between an employer and his employees under a collective bargaining agreement." Judge Albert B. Maris, who wrote the opinion which was filed yesterday without dissents from the court's two other judges, further held that, where an agreement exists, the board may not require discharge of an employee of union activity.

"The breach of a covenant against discharge," he wrote, "may not be redressed by the board, because, while clearly a breach of contract, the discharge is not an unfair labor practice within the meaning of the national labor relations act since it cannot possibly have the effect of interfering with or coercing the employees in exercising a right of collective bar-

22 Persons Hurt When Locomotive Explodes in West

Large Passenger Engine Was Being Pushed to Railroad Yards; Some Hurt Seriously

Denver, Feb. 4 (AP)—At least 22 persons were injured, some seriously, by the explosion of a large Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad passenger locomotive today as it was being pushed into the railroad yards in the southwest industrial section.

Several of the persons injured were motorists who had stopped at the intersection of 13th street and Osage avenue for the train to cross.

The boiler and cab of the locomotive were lifted from the undercarriage, hurled 60 feet into the air and thrown upside down on an empty Railway Express car. Before landing the boiler and cab arched over the locomotive behind.

People Are Dazed
Fireman Ray Shaffer, member of the first fire department rescue squad reaching the scene, said "We found people wandering around over a whole square block, so dazed they didn't know what they were doing. We just put them in ambulances and automobiles and sent them to hospitals."

Several of the dazed victims asked the firemen, "What's happened around here?"

Force of the blast blew windows and bricks from the Western Elaterite Roofing Co., plant, 25 feet from the tracks, and swung parked automobiles out of position.

Some members of a loading crew working on a track 50 feet away were injured.

Frank Hogg, an employee of the roofing company, described the explosion as "an earthquake and a powder plant explosion rolled into one."

"About four of us were in the office, joking and kidding before going to work," Hobbs related. "All of a sudden a terrific explosion knocked me backward. Some of the furniture flew around in the room and the walls seemed to jump."

"It was about 10 minutes before we could even see anything because of the dust and smoke and steam. The explosion just seemed to knock you backwards. Several men fell to their knees. 'When we could see, we ran outside. Cars were blown around the street. I was so dazed I couldn't even remember seeing any of the injured people.'"

The train was heading southward from the Denver Union Station to the D. & R. G. W. Burnham yards. The engine that exploded was one of the largest used by the railroad. It still had steam up after completing its run in Salt Lake City.

Behind the large locomotive was another locomotive, two railway express cars and two empty passenger cars.

After landing atop the first Railway Express car, the locomotive boiler slid to the ground. One trainman was reported to have been hurled from the second locomotive cab by the force of the explosion.

All the injured were Coloradans. They included the locomotive pilot, W. H. Walton, of Denver, four members of the train crew, six members of the loading crew and the motorists.

Charles A. Beard Tells Congress to Junk Aid Bill

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) said today he had "absolutely reliable" information that the army "does not now have a single plane suitable for combat service in modern warfare."

Wheeler declined to disclose his source of information, but declared he was convinced of its reliability.

During 1940, he declared, total war plane deliveries were 2,884, of which he said 2,308 went to Great Britain and other foreign countries and 576 went to the United States Army and Navy.

On January 1, Wheeler said, the Army had 639 planes, divided among various categories as follows:

Ninety-one heavy bombers, 38 medium bombers, 6 light bombers, 1 pursuit fighter, 212 pursuit interceptors, 231 observation, 14 reconnaissance and 46 transport.

He gave the figures in an interview.

Of the 639 planes, Wheeler said, not one was suitable for combat in modern war because all lacked either self-sealing gas tanks or sufficient firepower and armor plate.

Quotes Reports
Wheeler, a leader of the fight against the administration's aid-to-Britain bill, said he had read reports quoting Secretary Stimson as saying that the army had 650 first line combat planes. The Montana Senator added that the war secretary must have given an approximate figure for all types of army planes.

"The majority of the army planes are not fighting planes," the Senator declared, "but are tactical types."

Wheeler said he understood that 20 of the army's 91 heavy bombers would be released to Britain.

"The balance," he continued, "are not modernized and only 57 of them could be modernized."

"The medium and light bombers are looked upon by many army people as worthless, and they need to be modernized. The pursuit fighter is an experimental plane, and the pursuit interceptors, including 198 P-40s are to be modernized with armor plate and self-sealing gas tanks, but it is doubtful that they can be given adequate fire power."

Antiquated, Valueless
"The observation planes are antiquated, and the reconnaissance ships are of very little value. Eleven of the transports are the type used by private fliers and the balance are commercial ships without any protection."

"How can the people of the United States act intelligently with reference to our defenses when they are not given a breakdown of our plane holdings and do not know the real facts?"

"For the past eight years, the President has had a subversive congress. He has talked belligerently and yet this country at present hasn't a single plane suitable for carrying out his belligerent attitude."

Written English Applied Course To Be Given Here

The division of general education of New York University is offering an excellent course in written English applied under the leadership of Mrs. Bess Langfitt on Thursday evenings 7:15 to 9 at the Kingston City Library. This is an opportunity for all teachers of English to become better acquainted with a very important subject and for normal school graduates to complete part of the fourth year course which has been required by graduates since 1937 as they must complete 30 additional points in the next 10 years. This course has not been given in normal schools to date and therefore no teacher need fear duplication of the work. It will also help normal school graduates who need additional subject matter courses to reach junior high schools and for teachers who have to meet in-service requirements. Thursday, February 6, is the first class and all teachers are invited to visit the course that night for further information. Superintendent of Schools Arthur J. Laidlaw heartily endorses this course and recommends it to any teacher who wishes to improve herself in the art of "Written English."

Bill Offered to Cut Toll on Three Bridges

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP)—A bill designed to reduce tolls on the Bear Mountain Bridge, Mid-Hudson and Rip Van Winkle bridges from 50 to 35 cents, was introduced in the legislature today by Senator Allan Ryan, Jr., Dutchess Republican. The measure, which Ryan said would benefit "thousands of motorists" in the New York city and Hudson Valley areas, would empower the state bridge authority to reduce tolls with the approval of the state comptroller and public works superintendent.

Ryan's "excellent qualifications" as a regent, cited his record as an educator and administrator, and added:

"In his place you Republicans propose a man who has had no experience in education. He is identified with only one pursuit—politics—and you are making a grave error."

"If you desire to place a Republican on the board, you have the numbers to do so," Torney said. "But you have many men much better qualified to fill the position than Macy."

Macy's name was put before the Senate by Republican Senator George L. Thompson, Kings Park, as one who "has filled positions of trust for years to the satisfaction of the public."

Only Democratic reaction in the Senate was the inquiry of Minority Leader John J. Dunnigan:

"Is this the gentleman who is now leader of the Republican party in Suffolk county?"

"It is," Thompson answered. "That's all," said Dunnigan.

The 12-member, non-salaried board of regents seats only three Democrats. Ryan, whose term expires in April, Owen D. Young and Susan Bradles, both of New York city.

Ryan is the only member from the second judicial district, which embraces Kings, Nassau, Queens, Richmond and Suffolk county. Each judicial district must be represented among the regents.

Macy, a publisher and graduate of Groton and Harvard, was elected state Republican chairman in 1930. He was known chiefly for his fight on what he termed the "power interests" and his successful campaign against re-election in 1934 of Fred W. Hammond, Syracuse Republican, in the Assembly clerkship.

The Senate and Assembly will meet in joint session tomorrow noon for the regents election.

Appeal for Instruments Made for Industrial Home

An appeal has been made to The Freeman for instruments to be used by children at the Industrial Home who are interested in joining a neighborhood orchestra. Many of the children are anxious to join the orchestra but have no instruments. Instrumental instruction will be given those talented so that they can be absorbed by the neighborhood orchestra as soon as they are capable.

Anyone having such instruments as violin, guitar, banjo, mandolin or any other, and who would like to help some child have a musical start, is asked to call the Industrial Home and the instrument will be collected.

Girdler Foresees Increased Costs In C. I. O. Demands

(By The Associated Press)

Steelman Tom Girdler foresaw a threat today of "greatly" increased defense costs in CIO demands for wage increases, and in Washington the C. I. O.'s news service cited government figures to illustrate labor's "amazing docility in a period of business upturn, huge profits and high living costs."

Girdler's declaration, in Pittsburgh, came just two days before President Phillip Murray of the C. I. O. is to resume negotiations with U. S. Steel officials on demands which union sources say include a 10 per cent wage increase.

The C. I. O.'s news service printed figures to show that there were "fewer workers involved in strikes last year than in any year since 1932; and there were fewer man-days lost through strikes than in any year since 1930."

These various interpretations of the labor-defense situation coincided with those reports.

Chicago—Negotiators meeting in an effort to settle C. I. O. strike at the International Harvester Company which halted work a week ago on 1,000 tractors for the defense program and Great Britain.

Milwaukee—Settlement efforts marking time in C. I. O. strike at Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. with 7,000 workers and $40,000,000 in defense orders affected, strike entering third week tomorrow.

Pittsburgh—Representatives of the C. I. O. and management of Universal-Cyclops Steel Corporation, to confer on demands including 25 per cent wage increase. Some $4,000,000 defense orders involved in strike begun Friday.

Cleveland—Nearly 600 employees out in deadlocked dispute at Standard Tool Co. which makes a special equipment for defense industries.

Dayton—Some 150 of 1,500 trucking employees involved in four-day old strike back at work under agreement on undisclosed terms. Complete settlement being sought.

New Orleans—Work resumed on $365,000 national guard structure with settlement of A. F. L. objections to use W. P. A. labor.

ALLIGERVILLE

Alligerville, Feb. 4—The Rev. Mr. Hageman of Claverack officiated at the burial of Mrs. Moses Davis, a former resident of High Falls, which took place in the Kysierke cemetery Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren have returned from a month's vacation spent in Florida.

A son was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Rider of Kysierke.

Mrs. Harry DeWitt, who has been ill at the home of her son, Dr. DeWitt of New Paltz for the past ten days, returned home Sunday much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Trowbridge are occupying their new home in Kysierke.

New York, Feb. 4 (AP)—Leading stocks edged forward in today's market but real buying momentum was lacking.

Gains of reactions to a point or so for steels, rails, rubbers, coppers and specialties were cut or erased near the final hour. It was one of the slowest sessions since last September, transfers being at the rate of approximately 350,000 shares.

Early support was forthcoming, brokers said, on the theory that, from a technical standpoint, at least a temporary recovery was due.

Stocks on the upside most of the time included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, du Pont, Union Carbide, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Kennecott, International Nickel, Western Union, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, United Aircraft, Standard Oil of N. J. and N. Y. Shipbuilding. General Motors was a trifle backward.

Up now and then in an uneven curb were Gulf Oil, Cleveland Electric, Niagara Hudson Power and Republic Aviation. New England Telephone and United Shoe Machinery gave ground.

Action of General Motors' directors after Monday's close in voting a 75-cent dividend on the common, the same as paid in the first 1940 quarter, was a bit disappointing to some analysts who had been guessing on a $1 disbursement, similar to payments in the preceding three quarters. Others thought the "conservative" declaration might have been caused by the thought normal earnings for 1941 stood a chance of being interrupted by a shift to government armament orders.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 60 Beaver street, New York city, branch office 48 Main street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

Local Dealer Attends Wisconsin Convention
Harry G. Schryver, of George J. Schryver Motor Car Co., has just returned from a Nash dealers' convention at the Nash Motors Co. factory at Kenosha, Wis. The convention was attended by 350 Nash dealers from the eastern region who traveled by special trains to Kenosha.

Upon arrival, the dealers made a tour of the factory and inspected the new buildings and machinery which Nash installed this year at a cost of seven million dollars, to produce the new Nash Ambassador 600. The dealers found the factory to be in full production with new cars coming off the assembly lines at the rate of about one per minute.

At the conclusion of the convention, the dealers departed for home, each driving one of the new Nash 600 models. In spite of the bad weather encountered on the return trip, Mr. Schryver reports that the car he drove averaged 27 miles per gallon of gasoline for the 1,028 mile trip.

GAS STATION TO REPLACE HOUSE

This old stone house at the intersection of Fair street and Greenkill avenue, will be torn down to make room for a gas station. The property has been leased to the H. & R. Oil Corp., with option to purchase, and Contractor Thomas Kennedy starts today on the work of demolition. According to an inscription on the stone lintel over the doorway the house was erected in 1850, builders being Andrew Lyon and T. Quinn. Edgar T. Shullis of the Binnewater Lake Ice Co., who purchased the property in 1918, and built the frame addition, said that when he came to Kingston in 1900 the house was being used for saloon purposes by Isadore Spinner. He understood that it had been used for various purposes previous to that time, among them the conduct of a Sunday School.

Local Death Record

The funeral of Frank Lazatte of East Kingston was held this morning at the Kysierke Memorial Funeral Home. The deceased died at the Benedictine Hospital Saturday. Burial was in Montrose cemetery. He is survived by his wife and several daughters.

Mrs. Martha Jackson, widow of the late Robert Jackson, died at the home of her son, William, 581 Broadway, yesterday afternoon after a protracted illness. She is survived by two sons, William and Arthur. Funeral services will be held from the Wolf Funeral Home Wednesday, 2:30 p. m., at 340 Broadway. Burial will be in the Wiltwyck cemetery.

Miss Mary Cassidy died on Monday. She was a former resident of Stony Hollow and a daughter of the late Peter and Catherine Rafferty Cassidy. Funeral services will be held from the Henry J. Bruck Home for Funerals, 27 Smith avenue, on Thursday morning at 8:45 o'clock and thence to St. Joseph's Church where a Mass of requiem will be offered at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Elizabeth Mackey, 83, widow of Wesley Mackey, died on Saturday night at the home of her sister, Mary Jane Conn, in Marlborough, after a long illness. Born in Stone Ridge, a daughter of the late John and Catherine Depew Osterhout, she had lived in Highland the greater part of her life and had been in Marlborough for about two years. She was a member of the Methodist Church. Besides Mrs. Conn she is survived by a brother, Benson Osterhout, of Marlborough. Funeral services were held today.

The funeral of Mrs. Marie Ulrich was held Monday at the Ward Funeral Home in Poughkeepsie at 9 o'clock and at St. Peter's Church at 9:30 o'clock, where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. Frank Harper. Sunday evening Father Harper and relatives and friends recited the rosary at the funeral home. Bearers were Robert Kelly, Henry Ulrich, Jr., Samuel Greco and Stephen Ferris. Burial was in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery, where Father Harper pronounced final absolution.

Raymond T. Post, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Post, of 163 Wrentham street, died at the Kingston Hospital Monday evening. Funeral services will be held at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Julia Anderson, of 83 Ten Broeck avenue, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Montrose cemetery. The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Raymond P. Wolven Post, a daughter, Jean Elizabeth; four sisters, Mrs. Carrie Collins of Litcha, Mrs. Elmer Whipple, Mrs. Charles Parker and Mrs. Julia Anderson, all of the city; a brother, Eugene Post, of New York city.

Miss Isabel Swartwout of Pearl street has received word of the death recently in Los Angeles, Cal., of her aunt, Mrs. Della M. Mudd, widow of Col. S. W. Mudd, who was one of the nation's foremost mining engineers and who died in St. Louis in 1926. Mrs. Mudd and the colonel were married in Leadville, Colo., in 1887, her family having moved there from Port Jervis, where she was born in 1864. Mrs. Mudd had been active in civic and charitable affairs. She and her two sons donated the $265,000 Seeley W. Mudd Hall of philosophy to the University of Southern California in 1929 and two years ago donated a laboratory of general sciences to California Institute of Technology.

The funeral services for Theodore Weber, who died last Thursday, were held from his late home, 323 Broadway, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and were in charge of the Rev. Russell S. Gaenzle, pastor of the English Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, who paid a tribute to the Christian character, his devotion to his family and his effort on behalf of his church. Scores of relatives and friends also gathered to pay a final tribute. Several members of the Redeemer Church board attended the services as did the employees of the William O'Reilly, Inc., by whom Mr. Weber had long been a faithful employee. The O'Reilly store on Broadway was closed from 2 to 3 o'clock in respect to the memory of Mr. Weber. The bearers were John Carl, Louis and Richard Weber, Leo and Aloysius Clare. Burial was in the family plot where Paul

Swope to Appear Before Committee

Group Also Will Invite Maltbie to Session

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP)—Herbert Bayard Swope, confirmation of whose reappointment to the State Racing Commission has been delayed for weeks by the Senate finance committee, will appear before the group next Tuesday.

The Republican-controlled committee also agreed today to invite Milo R. Maltbie, recently reappointed by Governor Lehman to the $15,000-a-year chairmanship of the Public Service Commission.

While Senator George L. Thompson, chairman of the finance committee, said both of Lehman's nominees were asked to appear "as a matter of courtesy," Swope, a Democrat previously has been under Senate fire.

Meanwhile the Senate confirmed unanimously appointment of Joseph M. Mesnig, Troy, to a temporary vacancy on the State Tax Commission caused by assignment of Brigadier-General Ogden J. Ross to military duty with the federalized national guard.

Mesnig Will Resign

Mesnig, an assistant attorney-general, will resign that office to accept the $10,000-a-year tax commission place. Under state military law, Ross continues to receive the difference between his civil and military salaries.

Club Studies European Theatre

The meeting of Sorosis Monday afternoon was held at the home of Mrs. R. G. Burns on Smith avenue. Following the regular business session Mrs. Henry Milonig, Jr., presented a paper on "The Free Theatre in Germany, France and Russia." The speaker discussed the growth of the modern theatre in France under Paul Claudel and in Germany under Max Reinhardt, until a dictator sentenced them.

Her information on the Russian theatre came first hand from a student of dramatic art in the U.S.S.R. for some months. From this source was gained authentic data on Constantin Stanislavsky, director of The Art Theatre and Vsevolod Meirehold, director of The Vakhtangov Theatre. It was noted that great care is spent on every scene and months of rehearsals are needed to reach perfection. The theatre is to Russians what sports are to Americans. Where once a czar's permission had to be secured for a single group, thousands of dramatic societies and glee clubs flourish unhindered by the government.

The next meeting of Sorosis will be held at the home of Mrs. Theron L. Culver on Washington avenue.

Card Parties

Junior D.A.R.
The annual card party of the Junior Group of Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Clarence Wolfert. Card tallies will be provided, but those attending are requested to bring their own cards, cardable covers and score pads. Homemade candy will be sold during the evening. The candy and refreshments are in charge of Mrs. Walter Perret, chairman; Miss Isabel Swartwout, Miss Helen Evory and Miss Gertrude Evory. In previous years, the card party has been held at the historic D. A. R. house on Crown street, but, this year, as at the time of the World War, this house has been turned over to the American Red Cross for their work in making bandages, surgical supplies, etc.

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9649
The very backing of a well-rounded wardrobe is a trim, crisp cotton frock to wear from the first "good night" of the season to the last "good night." Pattern 9649 by Marian Martin is just such a style. It's cleverly designed to become your figure, with a waist-slimming, pointed girde and panels down the front and back of the skirt. The soft bodice is darted at the shoulders and gathered in above the waistband; the sleeves may be long or short. Wouldn't the colorful collar be refreshing in clear, starch white, with cuffs to match? Add tie-back or ruffling to both for a gay finish.

Pattern 9649 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric, 3/4 yard contrast and 1 1/4 yards tie-back.

Junior D. A. R. Officers Entertain National Officer

Mrs. William H. Pouch, honorary president general of the Children of the American Revolution, center, and the officers of the Junior Group of Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, who entertained her at dinner Monday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Others in the group are Mrs. John Garon, secretary; Mrs. Edgar Freese, vice-chairman; Mrs. William Macgregor Mills, advisor; Miss Alberta Davis, chairman, and Mrs. Harry Rigby, treasurer.

Preceding the regular meeting of the Junior Group at which Mrs. Pouch was guest speaker, a model meeting was held by the Junior American Citizens Club of School No. 8. Mrs. Pouch spoke on the work of the C. A. R. and showed films of the 1940 Continental Congress in Washington and the State Congress at Utica and the Approved Schools. She also showed pictures of a recent trip to the Fiji Islands and Australia. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Floyd Ellsworth and Mrs. Edgar Freese.

Becomes Army Nurse Frederick Snyder Honored at Dinner By C. H. Employees

An evening full of merriment and lighthearted fun was enjoyed Monday evening by 120 employees of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. at the recreation center at Rifton as assistant district manager Frederick Snyder was given a testimonial dinner on the eve of his leaving to assume higher duties at Beacon.

The entire evening was carried out in typical C. H. style with no dull moments in the well organized program. Yellow programs were given as favors to each guest. These programs contained a copy of the menu and the order of events on the program. The covers received much amused comment as they showed a cartoon of Mr. Snyder "sky-rocketing" from Kingston to Beacon.

Walter May acted as toastmaster for the evening. A special theme song on Mr. Snyder, written by C. W. King was sung by all in the group singing which opened the dinner.

"Farewells and What Have You?" under the direction of Arthur L. Colligan for the management; John F. Bruck for the service department; Miss Catherine Hummel for the girls, Clayton R. Smith for the operating departments and J. Ellis Briggs for the sales department was presented for the enjoyment of all.

Mr. Snyder was presented with a wrist watch by the employees. The presentation was made by G. Van Vlack with Mr. Snyder replying to the gift. Entertainment for all present brought the evening to a close.

The committee on arrangements consisted of E. M. Huber, chairman; G. Van Vlack and T. J. Morrissey, dinner; E. E. Craw, Miss Edna Britt and C. F. Wolfert, speakers; H. L. Winter and C. Hummel, entertainment; B. A. Short and Miss Ethelyn Wilkins, program.

Paul Zucca led the group singing with Danny Bittner furnishing the piano accompaniments.

Club Notices
Comforter Ladies' Aid
The Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of the Comforter will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. William Wood, 136 Foxhall avenue.

Wiltwyck Chapter D.A.R.
Joseph Block, a member of the Kingston High School faculty will speak on "This Changing World" at the February meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Lloyd R. LeFever has charge of the musical program. Hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Walter T. Tremper and Mrs. Prescott J. Clapp. The local board will meet at 2 o'clock.

Ponckhockie Ladies' Aid
The Ladies' Aid Society of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church will hold its February meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock. It will be an open meeting. An interesting program will be given. A number of guests are expected to be present.

Lutheran Ladies' Aid
The Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will have a covered dish supper for members and friends on Thursday, February 6 at 6:30 p. m. An unusually fine program has been arranged. The guest speaker will be Mrs. Stephen Ryder of Flatbush, a former missionary to Japan. She has enjoyed the privilege of serving that field for many years and now affairs are so critical in the far east that she can give much worthwhile information. Her topic will be Japan, the new and the old. She will come dressed in costume.

Mrs. Edward Luedtke will have charge of the covered dish supper. All women of the church desiring to attend are urged to call her and tell her what dish they are planning to bring. DAILY MENUS
By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Here is a good dinner for guests.

Dinner for Six
Mushroom Broth
Twisted Cheese Sticks
Stuffed Veal Steaks
Escalloped Sweet Potatoes
Savory Gravy
Buttered Broccoli Lemon Sauce
Hot Rolls Current Jelly
Cranberry Avocado Mold
Mayonnaise
Orange Fruit Sticks
Coffee

Cranberry Avocado Mold
2 cups berries
1 cup water, boiling
1 1/3 cups granulated sugar
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
3 tablespoons cold water
1/2 cup diced celery
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup broken nuts (any kind)
Crisp dress
2 avocados
4 tablespoons French dressing
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Boil berries and boiling water about ten minutes—until berries are soft. Add sugar and when dissolved mix in gelatin which has been soaked five minutes in cold water. Cool and add celery, salt and nuts. Pour into individual molds. Chill until stiff.

Peel avocados, cut in halves and discard seeds. Cut pulp into thin strips. Sprinkle with dressing and juice and chill an hour or so. Unmold the cranberry molds on cross, surround with avocado.

Orange Fruit Sticks
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup light brown sugar (or granulated)
1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup chopped figs or raisins
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

Beat the eggs and sugar. Lightly mix in other ingredients and pour into a shallow pan, fitted with waxed paper. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Cool, cut into strips, sprinkle with sugar.

Does Not Make Young Grandmother Seem Any Older to be Called Granny Than by Pet Name, Emily Post Thinks.
And She Certainly Prefers it to "Kittie Pie" or use of First Name—Admits She is Sentimental.

In my opinion it certainly does not make a young grandmother seem any older to be called "Granny" or "Grandmama" instead of "Kittie Pie" (an actual example) or some other pet name. Personally, I prefer "Grandmama." However, the following letter asks definitely: "What can grandparents be called instead of grandmother and grandfather? We are very young for grandparents and we think we'd rather be called something else if that is possible."

"Mama Mary" and "Papa John" are sometimes used for grandparents, and of course there is always the likelihood of a baby-talk name that a young child (unless discouraged) will make up for you both. One little boy I know calls his grandfather "Dear" and his grandmother "Dearie." In New York one hears occasional children calling their grandparents by their first names but I am inclined to believe that outside of certain ultracausal groups, people hearing a child call its grandmother "Mary" would think the child impertinent. My own feeling is perhaps a sentimental one but to me the names that unmistakably mean mother, father, grandmother and grandfather are all too precious to be relinquished by those who are so fortunate as to have the right to be called by them.

Pouring Coffee at Restaurant Table
Dear Mrs. Post: When dining in a restaurant, if the waiter stands a pot of coffee on the table and then walks away, who pours it—I am I supposed to or the man I'm having dinner with?

Answer: Correctly, "pouring" is a feminine accomplishment, but this rule is of no importance further than of doing what seems natural. That is, if the pot is nearer to you than to him or if it is placed on your right, you pour it. If the waiter has placed it for your companion to pour, then he does.

"Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, 3rd"
Dear Mrs. Post: I have to answer a formal invitation from Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, 3rd. Will you at least write the part of my answer which includes the Brown's name?

Answer: "3rd" is part of their name and the wording should be this:

Mr. and Mrs. John Blank accept with pleasure Mr. and Mrs. Brown, 3rd's (or third's) kind invitation, etc.

When There is no Host
Dear Mrs. Post: When a woman lives alone and invites a husband and wife to dinner, should the wife be seated at her right, or the husband?

Answer: The seat of honor would necessarily be on her right. At times when she includes a man relative or friend as the fourth, he would be seated opposite of her and the seat of honor would then be on his right.

TWO GENERATIONS

Co-ed's skirts are getting shorter and shorter, says Grace Elliott, president of the national Y. W. C. A., but she doesn't see any evidence of another jazz age, such as we ran into after the last war.

And speaking of skirts, it was in that last war that girls took to trousers, from which they have partially emerged by this time. Nobody outside the trade seems to care much any more whether skirts shorten or lengthen. Other considerations are more important.

"Youth is reacting more wisely to the war situation than did my generation," says Mrs. Elliott. "We swallowed up propaganda whole, had an unquestioning attitude." Now youth is more inquiring and critical. They don't want to fight, she says, but they will if it's necessary. They will do their part.

She finds them still worried about employment, even when they have work, as they do increasingly in these days. They fear that their jobs, produced largely by the needs of national defense, will be transient.

"Sadly, these children of the First World War's soldiers can't look to their parents for a solution to their problems," she concludes. "We ourselves are at sea."

It sounds discouraging. But really, hasn't there been too much talk of a lack of opportunity? Hasn't every generation had its new conditions and troubles? Hasn't there always been this problem of readjustment? Talk to the middle-aged and the old people, and see if they had it any easier.

DOCTOR DONNE COMES BACK

The title of Ernest Hemingway's current best seller, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," was borrowed from John Donne, who lived and wrote in England some years ago. Donne was a preacher and poet whose life span began during the reign of Queen Elizabeth and ended in that of Charles I. He was a contemporary of William Shakespeare. His poetry and sermons have been known only to a limited circle of Americans, but that situation seems about to end.

Since the publication of the Hemingway book there has been a rush for the works of Donne. He may soon be a best seller, too. Both public libraries and book stores have felt the demand, and all the available volumes of his poems—a supply which one publishing company says would normally have lasted through 1941—have been sold. The Columbia University Press is meeting the emergency with new publications, and another publishing house plans to bring out in March a volume of Donne's works previously planned for the end of the year.

The public has sometimes been divided into two camps—those who read best sellers and those who sneer at them. Perhaps there should be a third group to philosophize about the Donne-Hemingway development.

PRICE AND PROFIT

Some sort of economic lesson may be found in the fact that the fabulous movie, "Gone With the Wind," is making more money, now that it is being shown at popular prices, than it did at first with a higher price scale. When it re-opened in New York city recently there were 10,432 more paid admissions on the first two days than there had been for its premiere run, although interest in the picture at that time had attained almost fever pitch.

More interesting than the increase in number of admissions was the rise in cash returns. Matinee receipts were more than $1,000 above receipts for comparable shows when admissions were 50 per cent higher.

This experience was not limited to New York city. In various places the increases in attendance averaged 30 per cent and in receipts 10 to 15 per cent.

Large turn-over at low prices is apparently as profitable in this field as in mercantile establishments.

TWO THREATS TO AVOID

Debates on the question whether the United States is more gravely threatened from within or without are helpful if they convince listeners that both threats exist, and that saving the nation from either, without saving it from the other, would be foolish. Fortunately it is possible to meet both threats.

The threat of aggression is being met by the training of big defense forces and the building of defense weapons which will be capable of fighting if necessary. The threat from within is harder to meet.

In the first place, the internal peril has a complexity of causes. One is the deliberate propaganda of certain powers. Another is indifference to democracy itself, willingness to demand its benefits but not to work for it or sacrifice for it. Citizens who join up with the Communists in the various groups of fellow travelers under the guise of liberal intellectuals, or who encourage racial discrimination, political dishonesty, racketeering, denial of civil liberties, and so on, are injuring democracy.

The nation needs a rededication of its citizens to responsibility in this field as greatly as it needs military defense.

WORTH WHILE PARKS

Park vandalism in cities all over the country has been increasing in the last year or two. It has assumed such serious proportions in some places that people are beginning to question the civic wisdom of putting more money into park improvements.

The Park Department of New York City now keeps books on this matter. The first area to report, Brooklyn, said malicious destruction had cost the borough $31,000 in 1940. Most of it was damage to lighting fixtures. Other park equipment suffered far less.

This is a serious problem for park officials and taxpayers alike, but it does not produce a valid argument against public parks and recreation facilities. More police may be the solution. A small number of vandals can do a great amount of damage. But for a dozen or a score of destructive, anti-social citizens there are thousands of others who cherish the parks and use them with consideration for others and satisfaction for themselves.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)
LOW BLOOD PRESSURE IS NOT A DISEASE

A patient having his blood pressure tested asked the physician if his blood pressure was too high. The physician assured him that it was really low.

"Then it is my low blood pressure that makes me feel so weak and tired?"
The physician told him that the low blood pressure didn't "cause" symptoms but was usually just a symptom itself, a symptom accompanying a prolonged infection, anaemia or poor general physical condition, or might even be a normal or natural condition.

There was a time when physicians examining a man of 40 told him that his blood pressure was that of a boy of 20 when his pressure was 120. Today a man of 40 with a blood pressure of only 120 is believed to have low blood pressure and the physician usually searches for the cause.

The physician first takes into consideration the build or physique of the patient because, as mentioned before, thin individuals as a rule have lower blood pressure than those of normal weight and those who are overweight.

Dr. S. C. Robinson, Chicago, in the New England Journal of Medicine, states that low blood pressure is commonest in the linear (long and thin) or narrow-chested type.

There are more causes of low blood pressure among young men than among young women.

Low blood pressure is two or three times commoner among lightweight than among heavyweight men and women. Further, low blood pressure is found to remain low (for the age) even as the individual grows older. And finally, the death rate is lower in those with low blood pressure than in those with high or even normal pressure.

One of the interesting points noted by insurance and other medical examiners is that when an individual is well and healthy, eats large quantities of food and takes no exercise, if he cuts down on his food intake and increases his exercise, his blood pressure which was above normal, tends to come down to normal or even slightly below normal. Well trained athletes usually have normal or slightly low blood pressure.

The thought then is that low blood pressure does not cause symptoms. If quite low in a robust man or woman of wide build, then it is not a "healthy" sign and should be investigated. If slightly below normal in thin individuals, it is a good or normal sign.

Remember, low blood pressure is not a disease.

WHAT GOES ON HERE!

Income Tax

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 8
Exemptions allowed couples married during taxable year

The credit for dependents as well as the personal exemption is required to be prorated where a change of status occurs during the taxable year, and these credits are allowable not only for the purpose of computing the normal tax but also the surtax. A fractional part of a month is to be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a month.

For example, a single man and a single woman who were married on July 20, 1940, and lived together during the remainder of the year would be entitled to a personal exemption of $1,766.67 in a joint return for the calendar year 1940, which amount is seven-twelfths of $800 for the husband while single, plus one-twelfth of $800 for the wife while single, plus five-twelfths of $2,000 for the period during which they were married. If separate returns are filed, each is entitled to a personal exemption of $888.88, which is seven-twelfths of $800, plus one-half of five-twelfths of $2,000. If during the year 1940 the husband or the wife had the status of the head of a family prior to their marriage, he or she would be entitled to his or her pro rata share of the personal exemption of $2,000 allowed the head of a family for the period prior to their marriage instead of merely that allowed a single person.

However, for the period of their marriage any exemption to which either might be entitled as the head of a family would be merged in the joint personal exemption for that period. The joint personal exemption allowable in the case of a couple who were married and living together during the entire year may not exceed $2,000.

If a child under 18 years of age reaches the age of 18 years during the taxable year, the credit of $400 is required to be prorated in the same manner as the personal exemption. For example, should the child's eighteenth birthday fall on June 30, the parent would be entitled to claim $200 credit for the dependent child—that is, one-half of $400. The same rule applies to other dependents where a change of status occurs during the taxable year.

PHOENICIA

Phoenicia, Feb. 4.—Over 400 came in on the New York Sunday morning special to enjoy skiing. The Simpson Slope was a hum all day. Many also came by automobile.
Adrian Loomis attended a meeting of the Prudential Insurance Company at the Kingston office Friday afternoon.
G. Schwartzwalder of Woodstock was a caller in this place recently.
A meeting of the directors of the Ski Club was held Monday evening at the Gordon Pharmacy.
John Shurter who is employed in Schenectady spent the weekend with his people here.
Lester Bell, Jr., and family have moved from the Breithaupt house on Church street into a cottage belonging to the Phoenicia Hotel.
The New York State Slalom Championship race will be held on Simpson's Memorial Slope Sunday February 16. The race will start at 9:30 a. m. The Phoenicia Ski Club invites the public to witness the races.
The Tiskilwa Rebekah Lodge will hold a card party in the lodge rooms over the movie hall Thursday evening, February 13. The ticket for the card party will also include refreshments.
Brazil will have an air ministry.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—The coat-tails of national defense certainly are weighted down. There are more things (and people) riding on them than you could shake a bomber at. I don't mean to say that these things (and people) are good or bad. It will take that all-seeing backward glance of history to tell whether this or that was waste or a rare stroke of genius.

But good or bad, national defense is mithering an interesting brood. For instance one of these lusty infants popped up in the House of Representatives the other day in the form of a bill by Rep. John Martin Costello, Hollywood's Democratic congressman. It is another measure designed to put America on wings—this time on motorless wings—for if Mr. Costello's bill becomes a law, the air over the United States will be filled with gliders, piloted by soaring young hosts, committed to learn the rudiments of aerodynamics and thus skim over the first hurdle toward qualifications for flying with the army or navy.

Let's give Mr. Costello the air and let him tell it in his own words. As you will note he's not without a sense of humor.

Will 'Glide Forward'

"The United States will not slide backward in aviation if the young men of America glide forward in their training in the air. In order to make sure of America's supremacy in aviation, I have introduced a bill providing for a program of training glider pilots throughout the nation which would be carried on by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

"Under this bill, the CAA will be authorized to train as many glider pilots as they deem proper. This phase of aviation has been entirely neglected heretofore in the United States, so that today there are scarcely 200 glider clubs in the whole nation. According to the CAA statistics, there are only 124 licensed gliders in this country, with 120 private glider pilots registered and licensed and only 45 commercial glider pilots. The glider training program will bridge the gap for some 2,000,000 youngsters in this country who are today flying model planes with rubber bands, but who aim to fly real airplanes as soon as they grow up.

"It is interesting to note that Germany has for years carried on a program of glider training which has resulted in some 250,000 to 300,000 young Germans having been trained as glider pilots. It is from these trained and experienced young men that Germany is today obtaining her great mass of pilots for the armed forces."

Pointing out that the army and navy are perfectly capable of training, in short time, men for the "regular" branches of the service and that there are some 50,000 "radio hams" (amateurs) in the country who supply a backlog and important reserve for the Signal Corps, Mr. Costello contends that his bill will fill the one important gap in preliminary training for the military forces.

Looks Beyond Emergency

Looking beyond the purely defense phase, he says, "When war emergency conditions have changed and the newly expanded aircraft industry of this country returns to peacetime production, this program would prove of inestimable value" — by developing an increased interest in aviation and bringing about an expansion in civilian flying.

No more had Mr. Costello's words got out of his mouth than Baron Franz von Werra, a Nazi

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

Four serious books—

China, too, has a "first lady" with energy, courage and honesty to her credit. On the face of it, it seems unbelievable that Mme. Chiang Kai-shek could have found the strength and the quiet necessary to the production of a book. But she has, and "China Shall Rise Again" is as good a statement of the reasons for China's plight, and the factors that may help her to surmount her difficulties, as we have.

This is true because of two things. Mme. Chiang Kai-shek tells the truth about Chinese failings as well as about their virtues. She writes frankly, even sharply, about such things as the Chinese fear of losing "face," and the passivity which leads to the acceptance of disadvantages instead of the effort to best them. But she shows exactly how such things are being combated, and leaves her reader with the assurance that the combat will, in the end, succeed.

China has another interpreter in Winifred Galbraith, who was the only foreign member of Iyan University up to the Japanese invasion, and for 15 years has lived among the Chinese with sympathy and discernment. "In China Now" is less concerned with broad policies and sweeping statement, and more with presenting the people and their life under stress. It is full of incidents from daily life, all pointed and mostly well told. Its author believes the integrity of the Chinese working class is the hope of the nation.

"Great Britain Under Protection" is serious indeed. It is Frederick Benham's summary of the changes in the British Empire and the world brought about by the abandonment of her traditional free trade policy in 1931-32, its relation to British recovery in the period since, and its effect on world trade as well as British life.

The book covers a large subject clearly and cleverly.
And for a complete and sometimes terrifying analysis of the diplomacy of the years 1939-40, we can turn to Frederick L. Schuman's "Night Over Europe." Dr. Schuman's closely documented book tries to analyze coldly the diplomatic morass of those years without overlooking the human factors involved, and it succeeds better than one would expect any book to do when written so soon after the event. It is, also, easier reading than might seem likely.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Chester H. Bonesteel of this village and Miss Anna E. Berryman also of this place, took place at the Methodist parsonage by the Rev. Thomas Falsch, Saturday, January 25.

The bride is a nurse at the Bonesteel Sanitarium on Main street. The Sauersties Chapter D.A.R. will hold a meeting on this Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. B. Overbagh on Main street. A musical program will be presented.

The H. & W. dress factory on Russell street has resumed operations after being closed for the past several weeks. Morris Weinstein of New York city is now managing the help.

Mrs. James B. Krom of West Bridge street and Mrs. Maude Eckhoff of Jane street have left for West Palm Beach, Florida, where they will remain for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moose of Upper Market street are motoring south, where they will spend the month of February.

Superintendent of Water Department William R. Johnson has been a grip sufferer during the past week.

Mrs. Harold Voorhis of Ulster avenue went to East Orange, N. J., last Friday where she visited her son, Edward, who recently underwent an operation in the East Orange Hospital.

The fire department was called upon to extinguish a chimney fire at the residence of Mr. Gleisner on Burt street, Saturday morning. No damage was reported.

Patterson's Testimony Reveals Extent to Which Labor Intrigue Has Affected War Department

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 4.—The extent to which labor intrigue has absorbed the war department and influenced its decisions could not be better illustrated than by the testimony of Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson before the house military affairs committee.

Mr. Patterson is a newcomer in Washington and hence cannot be expected to be familiar with the tricks and maneuvers by which such a serious institution as the United States army can become entangled in the special privileges and special concerns of pressure groups. His testimony is rather naive as, for instance, when he expressed surprise that the Ford Motor Company took exception to the labor compliance clause. This provision was inserted in war department contracts on instructions from Sidney Hillman, who is on the payroll of a C. I. O. union, but nevertheless runs government labor policies.

The undersecretary said he didn't consider the clause particularly "drastic," but he could not be expected to know that the clause was inserted for the deliberate purpose of embarrassing one of the bidders on a public contract. He said he didn't know it was possible for the contract to go to a company which had not bid the lowest.

The clause had nothing to do with the quality of the product or the price of the goods being bought. In itself any provision which asks the bidders to assure the government they will comply with labor laws is about as innocent on its face as a stipulation that the bidders will not engage in bribery or do any one of a number of things which law-abiding citizens are not supposed to do. But it has a meaning in labor politics and is a form of intimidation designed to aid unionization campaigns.

The war department which is supposed to be a non-partisan and non-political agency could learn all this readily, but decided to obey the request of a labor leader on the national defense commission, who insisted that a provision be included in certain war department contracts submitted to bidders. When the superfluous language appended to the contract was not accepted by the bidder the war department without warrant of law arbitrarily refused to award the contract to the lowest bidder.

In the old days when the comptroller general's office was free from White House influence, this sort of procedure would have been questioned, but today when all departments and agencies are politically controlled no such check on improper use of power is available.

The undersecretary of war did testify frankly that the war department now was taking direction from Sidney Hillman of the International Garment Workers Union and that labor clauses suggested by him were being inserted in contracts irrespective of how they might influence the matter of getting products at the lowest cost to the taxpayer.

What Mr. Patterson may learn after he has been in Washington awhile is that the United States Army and the War Department are no longer independent agencies able to exercise their own judgment, but they must be careful not to offend pressure groups. Thus the Associated Press in a Washington dispatch this week reveals how important compulsory unionization has become to the war department.

"Trained as the Ford management excepted to the labor clauses in the defense truck contract, it was not immediately apparent whether the A. F. of L. unionization gains would have an effect on the company's chances for future orders."

The direct tie-up between unionization and the award of contracts is well understood in Washington and the meaning of the foregoing paragraph is that the war department will doubtless wait to be advised by Sidney Hillman whether it is all right to go ahead now and give orders to the Ford Motor Company since the A. F. of L. has announced that it is engaged in unionizing the two big plants of the Ford Company.

Despite, therefore, all the protestations of Senator Wagner of New York that the Wagner act does not compel a man to join a union if he does not wish to do so, it is apparent that an employer cannot be awarded government business on defense unless he accepts the dictation of union organizers. If he refuses to take the contracts. The President has added one step to the coercive powers—he announces that the plants may be commandeered.

In the old days of special privilege in government, favors were handed out to the biggest contributors of funds to the campaign, all of which liberals and radicals denounced as corruption. Today, however, the pressure groups with the largest vote-influence can make their desires felt even above any national defense needs. This is the real reason why so many Republicans are opposing the lend and lease bill. If they thought it was sincerely a measure to aid Britain they would approve it heartily, but they have come to believe it is merely a pretext for the exercise of more power by radical groups and ambitious labor organizers over the government and more radical experiments by the administration.

The cry that the President should be trusted with more power has struck a realistic snag because the powers already existing and plenty of power which is not written into any statute is being used for special privilege groups. The case of the Ford Motor Company this past week proves conclusively that labor scheming is more important here than national defense.

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Saugerties, Feb. 4.—The annual meeting of the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce was held in the Thornton Grill on January 29. Reports were presented by secretary George E. DuBois and the standing committees. John C. Sauer, president of the local organization, gave a detail report on the business transacted during the past year and presented a program for the coming year. The officers were all re-elected as follows: President, John C. Sauer; First Vice President, William F. Kelly; Second Vice President, Orville Snyder; Secretary, George E. DuBois and Treasurer, Joseph Frankel. The efforts of the Chamber of Commerce will be directed this year toward the promotion of new industries for Saugerties and for the resumption of the local factories either idle or working part time to gain in production and place more people in work.

Vital statistics in the village and Township of Saugerties during 1940 were as follows: Village Births, 49; Deaths, 48; Town of Saugerties; Marriages, 74; Births, 30 and Deaths, 49.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Chester H. Bonesteel of this village and Miss Anna E. Berryman also of this place, took place at the Methodist parsonage by the Rev. Thomas Falsch, Saturday, January 25.

The Lion Of Judah Roars Again

(AP Feature Service)

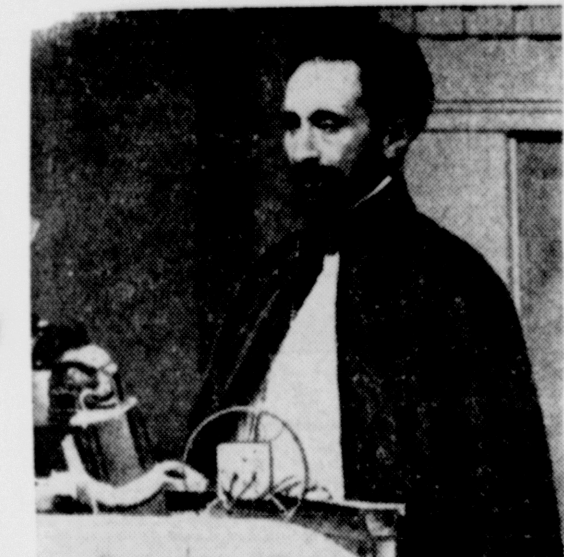

"King of Kings of Ethiopia, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Elect of God, Light of the World."

This was the title that Haile Selassie packed along with him to England in 1936 when Italy threw him out of Ethiopia.

Now he's back in Ethiopia—like the title and more, for the English who wouldn't help him five years ago are just as mad now at the Italians as he is, and just as set on driving them out of the country.

As a descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, by his own reckoning, Haile Selassie can look down on upstart royalty like the Windsors. He is 49—a small, bearded chief of tall, bearded tribesmen. The outside world first became aware of him in 1923 when he entered Ethiopia in the League of Nations, to which he appealed when the Fascists invaded.

A dozen years later, his beard, his pre-Chamberlain umbrella, his entourage of tribal chieftains and his incredible array of titles caught the public fancy and made his name a by-word.

parts of the plane from a vantage point about 200 yards distant.

C. I. Kimple, Morton weekly paper publisher, said they told him they saw at least one body, and no sign of life at the scene. He said he gained the impression the wreckage was in a ravine, dif-icult of access.

Major Overacker said the site was about 3½ airline miles from this little lumbering community, but declined to disclose in what direction. Authorities estimated it would take a party of about 100 nearly 12 hours to hike to the scene and bring out the bodies of the men and salvage the wreck.

Major Overacker said a state patrolman and one of the two woodsmen went into the area last night, but had no means of reporting back.

The woodsmen said there was no sign of snow or fire at the scene, less than 50 miles south of Me-Chord Field, from which the bomber took off on a flight to the Muroc Lake bombing range in California. It was the center of an extensive search from the air for two weeks.

Miner, 83, Digs In Los Angeles for Columbus' Gold

Mojave Prospector Follows What He Says Was Vision in Form of Sicilian Don

Los Angeles, Feb. 4 (AP)—Surrounded by kibitzers, John H. Ryan, 83-year-old hard rock miner who spent years on the Mojave Desert, shoveled dirt today beneath a city sidewalk in search of Christopher Columbus' log of his Atlantic crossing and a chest full of silver and gold.

Behind the hunt is a vision Ryan says he had 30 years ago as he sat with friends in a mystic circle.

"A man suddenly joined us there and gave me the commands," he related. "He was a Sicilian don. . . . He was the guy who put it all there."

The don, Ryan went on, was a descendant of Columbus, had received the log and treasure passed down through the family for 350 years, and had buried it in the forties when the Spanish residents of Los Angeles heard that Capt. John C. Fremont was leading an army into California.

Later the don went away to fight in the Mexican war and returned, Ryan added, only in the vision.

The don's instructions told the prospector to look "beyond a cemetery and across the second little draw."

"I have been looking for a likely spot off and on ever since," he continued, "but not until now have I been directed to the right place."

Ryan displayed three doodlebugs he said aided determination of the exact location, which is at a street intersection not far from the downtown district. The devices were a gold watch, attached by a gold chain to several gold rings, and two pouches filled with dimes.

"Everything in nature attracts its kind," he explained, holding the watch near the digging spot. The chain swung back and forth. As he held it over the sidewalk, it stopped.

"It's being pulled straight down," he said. "The treasure is right here."

Ryan, who with two assistants started the digging yesterday and stopped barely beneath the cement sidewalk, expects to find fortune at a depth of about eight feet.

Draftees to Leave For Albany Today

Twelve Other Young Men Get Examination

This afternoon four draftees left Kingston for the army induction station in Albany. They had been sent by the Kingston Selective Service Board as replacements for draftees who had been rejected for physical reasons by the army officers in January.

The four were: Frank G. Bunce of 186 Third avenue; Myer Levine of 180 Washington avenue; Arthur Crispell of 50 Meadow street; Herbert C. Wolff of 65 West Union street.

This morning 12 men were given a physical examination at the American Legion Building. Each week the local draft board is having a quota of 12 men examined on Tuesday.

Two Plead Guilty And Warrants Are Ordered for Six

New York, Feb. 3 (Special)—John Rose and Joseph Rose of Thiells pleaded guilty in United State District Court here today before Judge Alfred C. Cox, to an indictment handed up in 1937, charging them and 10 others with conspiring to violate the liquor laws at Walker Valley and Pine Bush.

Bench warrants were ordered, at the request of Assistant United State Attorney John Burling, for six of the defendants who failed to appear today. They are James F. Weed and Louis H. Weed, Walker Valley, John W. Sinsabaugh and John R. Sinsabaugh, Pine Bush, and Frank and Fred Basel, of Walker Valley. No warrant was issued for Clarence Slater of Kerhonkson because his failure to appear was due to a broken leg. The other defendants are at present in jail.

The warrants will not be issued until Thursday in order to give the defendants an opportunity to appear voluntarily.

The defendants are alleged to have operated stills on the Basel

The World is Flat!

By NORMAN CHANDLER
Chairman, Newspaper Publishers Committee

YOU BELIEVE WHAT YOU READ AND HEAR. Don't deny it—because if you do, you're admitting you can't learn anything!

If you had lived all your life in a place where you were told the earth was flat, you'd know no differently. You'd say the world is flat.

But if you lived in a country where all the facts, all the ideas, all the opinions were brought to you in a handy everyday package, you'd be able to make up your mind about the shape of the earth or the worth of a law or the value of a certain kind of shirt.

And you do live in the latter kind of a country. You live in a democracy—a place where people, making up their own minds, can govern themselves, make a living for themselves and convert their money into bread and butter and permanent waves.

Where do they get this knowledge, this power to decide for themselves? Just where you are getting it now—from your newspaper.

Don't let anyone ever tell you you don't need news about people and laws and events. And don't let anyone tell you that you can get along without the advertising news you read.

Just watch a man or woman who reads the ads make a dollar do its full job. And watch the well-read man support the right kind of government. Watch him guard his freedom. Watch him increase his security and protect his liberty.

Isn't it strange how few people stop to realize that America's newspapers are the very key to America's freedom?

NOTE: The Newspaper Publishers Committee, composed of over 350 leading American Newspapers, publishes these messages bi-monthly each week. The force which unites these newspapers is their recognition of their responsibility to you, the reader.

Chapter 30

New York Express

"FINE!" said Warren. "You're a regular little Florence Nightingale."

"Put your arm across my shoulders," said Polly.

Warren did so, and the two of them went out.

David, who had taken the gun from Polly, and who had securely bound the hands of Mike and Al, now began to prod them—urging them toward the door.

"Shut off the fountain, Peter," he called back, "and bring along that bag."

"Sure!" said Peter. Then he gasped. "Gosh, Cousin David, I—forgot to put on my pants."

"We can't wait for you to do that now," David said. "Wrap a blanket around you and come on."

He gave the men another push. "Get a move on. There's a couple of nice cozy cells waiting for you in the Ardendale jail."

Peter, wrapped in the blanket, and trying to hold it about him while carrying the bag in one hand and his pants in the other, had some difficulty in following.

But he managed it.

"Polly, you'll have to drive," David told her. "I'll sit in back and keep these men covered. You all right, Warren?"

"Yes, Dave," said Warren. "Don't worry about me."

"Where do I sit?" Peter asked. "In front," said David. "And hold on tight to that bag."

"Sure I will!" said Peter. Polly released the brake.

Doctor Ben's seven-year-old car moved off into the rainy night, heavily loaded with the strangest cargo it had ever carried.

How It Happened

THE rain had stopped. The moon was shining feebly.

And Polly and David were sitting on the front porch of old Doctor Ben's house. Doctor Ben, himself, was upstairs with Warren. Another doctor was with them, and they were probing for the bullet that was lodged in the upper part of Warren's arm.

"Yes, go on," David said. "You and Warren started out with the rest of the town to try and find the holdup men, and—"

"And we found your abandoned car," said Polly. She shuddered. "It gave me the creeps, David, darling, seeing that little old car I love, there in the rain, deserted, forlorn. I was terrified at the thought of something having happened to you."

"Meaning it would have mattered to you?" said David.

"It would have mattered a lot, David," said Polly. "I've been acting like a darned little fool. But to go on with the story: I told Warren that maybe you and Peter had gone to the Inn. And so that's where we hurried. You know the rest."

"Did they find the car the hold-up men sped away in?"

"Yes. It had a blowout. They had driven it into a clump of woods, and left it there."

David sighed.

"And now they're safe in jail," he said, "and Mr. Powers has all his money back. He grinned. "The bookkeeper was always talking about gangster stories, and what he would do if someone held him up! Well, he had his chance to prove his mettle."

"There wasn't much he could do," said Polly. "When he walked into the lumber plan office with the payroll money, the two men were hiding there. They snatched the bag, tied up the bookkeeper, and ran out."

"Excitement for Ardendale at last!" said David. "And"—he reached out and took Polly's hand—"and it looks like a happy ending."

"For us, maybe, David—but not for everybody."

"No?"

"No. Warren's been shot, and Margo's gone."

"Yes, that's right."

There was a sound back of them. They turned. Doctor Ben was standing in the doorway.

"Warren wants to see you two," he said.

"Is he all right?" Polly asked eagerly.

"He'll be. Go on up, if you like."

David and Polly hurried into the house. A few moments later they were standing by Warren's bed. He grinned up at them.

"How's the hero and the heroine?" he said.

"You should know," said David. "Since you're the hero, yourself."

"Nonsense," said Warren. "Any man who captures two desperadoes singlehanded is—"

"I didn't," said David. "Peter helped."

"Plucky kid, that—How is he?"

"All in," said David. "He tumbled into bed, still a little embarrassed, over being caught pantsless by you and Polly."

"And I never even noticed that he didn't have his pants on," said Polly. "The darling."

The sound of a train whistle, mournful and long-drawn-out, came to their ears.

"The express to New York," said Warren.

"Yes," said David.

There was an awkward moment.

"Well, good luck to her," Warren said. "I guess it wouldn't be right to keep anyone as beautiful as Margo shut up in a small town like Ardendale."

"I don't agree with you," said Polly. "Any girl in her right mind, Warren, would want to be shut up anywhere—if you were with her."

"That's right," said a voice from the doorway.

The three young people in the room all turned to look.

Margo

MARGO was standing upon the threshold.

"Doctor Ben said I could come up," she told them.

"Margo!" said Warren. He tried to raise himself, but couldn't. He sank back against the pillows.

"We thought you were on that train we just heard leaving," said Polly.

"I changed my mind," said Margo. She smiled somewhat tremulously. "It's a woman's privilege, you know."

She crossed the room, sank down in a chair close to Warren, and took one of his hands. "I was going to board the express," she went on, "but when Dad came rushing in to tell me you'd been shot, I—I just couldn't leave."

Warren smiled up at her. "That's nice of you," he said. "Postponing your trip. But I'll be all right."

"I'm not going to take the trip," said Margo. "I've come to my senses at last."

"Which," said Polly, "makes two of us."

Margo didn't pay any attention. She lifted Warren's hand, laid it against her cheek.

"Sometimes it takes a holdup, a chase after criminals, and—and a near murder to make some people appreciate real values, Warren, darling," she said. "Well, I guess I'm one of those people. Anyway, here I am."

"To stay?"

"Yes. Maybe we can take a trip together sometime. But that can wait."

Polly tiptoed to the door. "Come on, David," she said; "can't you see we're the crowd?"

"Sure," said David.

"Don't go yet," Margo called. "I've got a message from Dad. He's going to invest two thousand dollars with you two boys—in the Inn, you know."

"Gosh!" said David.

"That means we can go ahead and start the ball rolling!" said Warren.

"And I've got some money that's lying around doing nothing, Warren," Margo said. "If—if you and David need it."

"Good girl!" said Warren. He used his good arm to pull her face down close to his.

"Who says there isn't a Santa Claus?" David laughed.

Polly looked around at the others.

"All this calls for a celebration, it seems to me," she said.

"You bet it does!" Margo agreed.

"Let's have a picnic out at Freddy's Folly!" David said. "How about it, Warren?"

"Suits me!" said Warren. "Just as soon as Doctor Ben will let me move about."

"All right with you, Margo?" Polly asked.

"I'd love it," said Margo. "I'm getting to be awfully fond of Freddy's Folly."

"I tell you what we'll do," said David. "Peter's having a birthday on the tenth. We'll have the picnic then. After all, the kid did help bring all this about."

"The tenth it shall be!" said Warren. "I'll be fit as a fiddle by then." He smiled up at David and Polly. "Swell pair, you two," he said, "but if you don't mind, we'd—"

"I get it," laughed David. "Come on, Polly. Can't you see we're the crowd?"

"I've been seeing it for some time," Polly retorted.

She walked out into the upper hall. David was right behind her. As they went down the stairs they heard Andy Powers talking to Doctor Ben. The Doctor looked out of his office, saw them, and told them to come inside.

"Mr. Powers has got some astounding news for you," he said.

"You bet I have!" said the lumberman. "And I lost no time coming to bring it. I figured I'd find you two here with Dr. McNeill. Say, do you know who those two men are? The men who landed in jail?"

"All I know," said David, "is that they call themselves Mike and Al—which sounds sort of like a vaudeville team."

"Well, they're not a vaudeville team," Andy Powers said. "They're the two men who've been pulling those holdup jobs throughout Virginia and the Carolinas."

"Gosh, no!" David gasped.

"And what's more," Andy said, "there's a five-thousand-dollar reward out for them."

"Gosh!"

"Oh, David!" Polly cried. "And you are going to get it."

"That's right!" said Andy. "Somebody pinch me," said David. "I must be dreaming. Me, with five thousand dollars—I don't believe there's that much money in the whole world. He stopped. "Say, Peter gets half of that!" he said. "If he hadn't turned on the fountain, and hit Mike with the stick of wood, I never could have captured them."

"You can split the reward any way you want to," Andy said. "The point is, you get it—and the public is safe from further crimes by this Mike and Al."

Sam accosted Rastus, a boot-black, wanting to borrow a dollar. Rastus had recently attended a Chamber of Commerce meeting for a drive for new members, and had listened to a discussion of ethics which business should use. So he turned to Sam and said: (Omitting all dialect)—"Listen heah Samuel, you know Mr. Benson, president of the First National Bank. Well, me and Mr. Benson and a lot of other folks, has done joined the organization and I done promised Mr. Benson dat I wouldn't loan no more money if he doan shine no shoes. So you sees, Samuel, I is obligated and I can't let you have no dollar."

A little town is where the people help you if you are in trouble, and create trouble for you if you aren't in trouble.

This was not his aim: Harrison was proud of his golf, and had brought his mother-in-law along to see him play with a friend.

Harrison—I'm particularly anxious to make a terrific drive just now. There's my mother-in-law over there, and—

Friend—Don't be a fool, you'll never hit her at 200 yards.

We will work better if we do not lose faith that good work brings reward.

Perhaps it was just as well. The old gentleman was a trifle bewildered at the elaborate wedding. "Are you the groom?" he asked a melancholy-looking young man.

"No, sir," the young man replied. "I was eliminated in the preliminary try-outs."

Mrs. Anson Rogers of West Forsyth street, has gone to Reno for removal of a large male on her neck.

An invitation to dinner had been sent to the newly settled physician. In reply, the hostess received an illegible letter.

Hostess—I must know if he accepts or refuses.

Husband—If I were you I should take it to the druggist. Druggists can always read doctors' letters, however badly they are written.

The druggist looked at the slip of note paper, went into his dispensary and returned a few minutes later with a bottle.

Druggist—There you are, Madam. That will be 75 cents.

The men who make the money tomorrow are those who discover and correct their mistakes today.

Little Betty and Junior had attended a talk by a returned missionary.

Grandma—What did he tell you about the heathen?

Junior—Oh, he said that they were often very hungry, and when they beat on their tom-toms, it could be heard for miles.

A lot of citizens in the smaller towns are missing a good bet in failing to patronize their local papers. These newspaper boys located in towns of less than a thousand people have a very hard row to hoe. They are giving more than is appreciated. Like the water in the well, they will not be missed until they are gone.

The same is true elsewhere: Rastus—How am de collections oveh at yo' church, Brudder Jones?

Amos—Well, I ain't had to stop lately in de middle ob de collection to go empty de box.

Many a romance begun beside a splashing waterfall at a summer resort has ended beside a leaky water faucet in a kitchen sink.

Frank—You have admitted Williams to your club? But he's such a bore.

Harry—I know, we wanted someone to grumble about.

How times have changed! When we were boys we were thumped on the head for smiling in church. The other night a magician played card tricks in our church, and nobody remonstrated.

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—Despite an accident in which he lost two toes, Robert Prouty, 23, has a job. J. McFerran Barr, vice-president of a local bank where several young men had been called for military service, commented he needed men "without all of their toes." A friend sent Prouty to the bank. He was hired immediately.

PRECAUTIONS FOR A PRESIDENT.—Proof of the great care taken to guard F.D.R. is shown in inaugural day parade view. A V-shaped motorcycle wedge of cops rode ahead. Police stood every 25 feet facing crowds. Two carloads of secret service men clustered about F.D.R.'s auto. More "SS" men rode in motorcycle sidecars.

FOREIGN POLICY.—Sen. James F. Byrnes (D-S.C.), a new senate foreign relations committee member, gets lowdown from new chairman, Sen. Walter F. George (left), Georgia democrat. Another new member is Sen. Carter Glass of Virginia.

ISLES RULER.—Gen. Ettore Bastico (above), 64, a veteran of the Fascist blackshirts, is governor of Italy's Dodecanese Islands, which might become involved if war shifts major activity to the area near Turkey and Asia Minor.

GREEK CAKE OF GOOD FORTUNE.—With sure hand the Most Reverend Athenagoras, archbishop of Greek Orthodox church for North and South America, cuts the cake of good fortune at a Greek war relief benefit in Philadelphia. Watching are Thomas Cherbas, in a Greek soldier's uniform, and Miss Areli Nickles. Cake was distributed to Greek groups in Philadelphia.

BRIDGE PROBLEM.—Steady hands and quick footwork were needed by the men who helped roll this chemical storage tank across a bridge between Lackawanna, N. Y., and Niagara Falls, N. Y. The tank, 15 feet in diameter, was too high on a truck.

ANY LUCK?—Son Jimmy helps his dad, Truett "Rip" Sewell of the Pirates, try his luck in lake near Plant City, Fla.

NICE FOR A MANTEL.—As neat a mantel decoration as one could ask for is Ida Lupino, film actress, who wears this fireplace well. She also has on a pajama costume of green and white striped crepe, with a scimitar-accented wide waistband.

SOME HIGH, SOME LOW.—Walt Parkin (right), 125-pound defense man on Drexel Tech's hockey team, sizes up Cliff Engler, Penn's 6'4" tackle. They met in Pennsylvania Intercollegiate league matches. Parkin is a 4'11" battler.

PAST DOES FOR THE PRESENT.—Coffin niches dedicated to the Seven Dwarfs serve as bunks in this old desert Roman tomb that has become a British battalion headquarters.

TO ALASKA.—First Red Cross man ever to be stationed in Alaska is Keith McCoy (above), who'll have charge of a vast Alaska territory from Anchorage to the Aleutians.

IN MAN'S IMAGE.—Like some stone man watching their labors is this stumpy ruin of a wrecked building in London, where firemen keep constant vigil against incendiary bombs.

EXPERT.—Questions concerning British women's share in munitions production are referred to Miss Verena Holmes, a new technical adviser to England's ministry of labor.

FOR REST BEFORE RESCUE.—A Nazi refuge-buoy, used as a floating haven for German airmen shot down in the channel, reached British shores, by mistake, after being torn from its moorings. Inside are four bunks for downed airmen.

BASSO TAKES A BRIDE.—Ezio Pinza, leading basso with the Metropolitan Opera, poses in his New York home with his bride, the former Doris Leak of Larchmont, N. Y.

Ellenville Broker Killed When Gun Fires by Accident

On effect. The left hand was using the barrel of the rifle, the butt of which rested on the floor.

On a table at the right lay a gun, waiting to be cleaned. Mr. Dunlop was sitting in an arm chair in front of his desk in rear office and evidently had made preparation to clean the gun, as a chair at his side contained pieces of cloth cut in size for cleaning purposes, in addition to the gun. From a box he had picked up the gun and perhaps had been peering into the barrel when the gun struck the floor or was disarranged in some other manner.

It was understood that Mr. Dunlop was accustomed to carry one of the guns with him in his automobile and Coroner McHugh was told that the morning of the accident, about 10 o'clock, Dr. J. C. Coles, happened along as Mr. Dunlop took his gun from his car and went to clean it. He was cleaning the gun when it was turned over to him by Lambert, Ellenville undertaker. Funeral services will be held at the home on Maple avenue, Wednesday at 2 p. m., the Rev. Bell of the Ellenville Reformed Church officiating. Interment will be in Fintinekill Cemetery.

Mr. Dunlop is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was Ethel Hoonbeck and by one daughter, Mary, who is a student at college.

In addition to his business connections he just recently was elected vice-president of the Hudson Valley Association of Insurance Agents. Mr. Dunlop was well known and active generally. He was a great interest in sport and the work of the Ulster County Game Association and the Town of Wawarsing Association and had been for years a member of the Beaver Dam Fish Club. He was a member of the Ellenville Lodge, No. 582, F. & M., having been made a Mason March, 1921.

Mr. Dunlop had been active as appraiser for numerous claims in land proceedings connected with the taking of property for the construction of the Lackawack river.

Power Service to Be Cut in Nearby Area

The Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., announces there will be a short interruption in the electric service supplied to customers of Esopus, Ulster Park, Port Ewen, Slightsburgh and Connelly on Thursday, February 6, at 3 a. m.

This interruption will be of 45 minutes' duration and is necessitated by changes that are being made to improve electric service in this area.

Many to Attend Social Hygiene Affair in City

Over 85 reservations have already been made for the fifth National Social Hygiene Day dinner to be held at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow evening.

Sponsored by the Ulster County Social Hygiene Committee the 1941 observance will emphasize social hygiene and national defense. Public attention that day will be directed toward the new intensified recreational and health problems confronting our communities. Communities from coast to coast are now observing National Social Hygiene Day.

The Rev. Maurice W. Venno, chairman, has received word from West Point that Captain R. L. Daniel will be assisted in his talk by Captain W. H. Maglan, provost marshal, who has had wide experience in the army social hygiene program.

Dr. Eugene Galvin, medical representative of the Official County Public Health Committee will act as chairman for the meeting and Mayor Conrad J. Heise will have with him the Selective Service Boards will open the discussion.

ate moves were taken to bring Laval back into the government, and he continued to stay in Paris, to which he had gone with Otto Abetz, German envoy to France.

Laval was given the support of the "People's National Committee" organized in Paris which came last week with press and radio criticism of the "men of Vichy" and urged full and immediate collaboration with Germany.

German sources were understood to have taken the view no collaboration could be accomplished without Laval.

Axis Announces New British Losses

Jean Darlan conferred yesterday in Paris with Laval and was expected to report to Petain in Vichy today.

In Cuba, President Fulgencio Batista—in a sudden series of actions during the night—ousted chiefs of his nation's armed forces, charged them with a "seditious attitude" and suspended constitutional guarantees for 15 days.

He said a "deep crisis which endangered the stability of the republic has been overcome, and order and tranquility prevail again."

Machine-guns and barricades were mounted at the entrance to the presidential palace; national police headquarters also were barricaded, and the army took over public utilities.

Batista appointed new chiefs of the army, navy and national police to replace the ousted men, two of whom were arrested.

CONWAY OPENS COUNTY COURT

Freeman Photo

County Judge J. Edward Conway conducted his first session of county court yesterday afternoon since he took office on January 1. Judge Conway, left, was greeted by members of the Ulster County Bar and a large delegation of friends as he took his place on the bench. Judge John T. Loughran of the Court of Appeals, shown above with Judge Conway spoke in behalf of the Ulster County Bar Association in welcoming the new judge to the county bench.

Conway Assumes Place on Bench

court Arthur B. Ewig, president of the Ulster County Bar Association, seated within the bar, arose and after expressing his own pleasure at the privilege of welcoming a new presiding judge, introduced Justice John T. Loughran, of the State Court of Appeals.

"Your teacher and my teacher" to speak for the Bar Association. Judge Loughran welcomed Ulster county's newest presiding judge of its County Court in a very pleasing address that combined with words of congratulation and confidence in the future some brief hints as to those qualities which mark the successful and honored judge. Among those qualifications were noted a deep and constant human sympathy and understanding. He believed, speaking as one who for three years had been his teacher at Fordham Law School, that Judge Conway would exemplify those traits. He said that he liked to feel that something of himself had helped to mark his former pupil's success to this time and assisted him in reaching his present honorable position.

"First, a Gentleman"

Judge Loughran referred to the remark of a famous London judge who said that one of the first qualifications was that a judge be "a gentleman," and who added that "if he knows a little law that is better still." The speaker told of his own experience "but a few months of a whole generation ago," when as a young attorney at the Ulster county bar he benefited from the kindly interposition of the presiding judge, the late Judge Charles F. Cantine, "a learned lawyer and one of God's own gentlemen." He had never forgotten that act of kindly consideration for a young lawyer.

In conclusion Judge Loughran congratulated Judge Conway with "sincerity, confidence and pride," and said that he had no doubt but that he would discharge the exacting duties of the high office with distinction and honor.

Replying briefly, Judge Conway said he felt "very humble," indeed as he considered the duties of the office upon which he was entering. He felt highly honored by the words spoken by "Ulster county's most distinguished jurist." He said that he would "to the best of my ability, both in and out of court, try to justify the confidence that has been reposed in me and show my appreciation of all these kind words and tributes."

Judge Loughran was invited to take a seat on the bench and completed, remaining throughout the opening session of the February term of county court which followed.

The first business was the calling of the names of the panel of trial jurors by County Clerk Robert Snyder. Six failed to answer to their names. Of these two were ill, Michael Davitt of Kings-daken, while another, George Kent of Hurley, had left the county. Nicholas Lippert had previously been excused.

Eight jurors were excused—Paul Beaver, Nathan Cole, Raymond Herman, Frank Severing, Charles Terwilliger, Charles M. Todd, W. Grant Trumbour and Floyd Weeks.

Calendar Is Called

The civil calendar was called and numerous cases were marked ready for trial and seven cases were reported settled. The trial of civil cases is to begin on Monday, February 24. The first case on the day calendar will be that of Edward E. Murray, Charles W. Gillespie and John E. Saff, as trustees of the Pine Bush National Bank, against Frank McCord. This is an appeal from justices court. Roscoe V. Elsworth is attorney for the plaintiffs and Fowler & Fowler appear for the defendant.

The negligence action brought by Peter J. Schreiber against the Callanan Road Improvement Co., who operate the Mingo Hollow quarry, was put over to the April term. The case was tried nearly two years ago before Judge Frederick G. Traver, the jury disagreeing after a 10-days' trial. It was feared that time would not permit the trial of the case at this month's term of court.

presented by Frederick H. Stang, assistant district attorney, in absence because of illness of District Attorney Haver.

William Davis, 39, of New York city, indicted for grand larceny in the first degree, pleaded not guilty. He is charged with having stolen jewelry and money, valued at upward of $1,000, from Mrs. Ethel Forbes of Walker Valley in December, 1938. He was remanded to jail.

Edgar Peterson of Kingston, charged with abandonment, withdrew his former plea and pleaded to a charge of abandonment. He was remanded to the custody of the sheriff pending sentence on Wednesday at 2 p. m.

Jason Sahler of Ulster Park, charged with endangering the life, health and morals of a child, pleaded not guilty. On the application of his attorney, Chris J. Flanagan, his bail of $1,000 was continued.

On request of Mr. Stang action in the case of Joseph Manning, a disorderly person charge, was deferred to Wednesday afternoon.

Judge Conway then adjourned court till Wednesday, February 5, at 2 p. m., at which time all jurors who have not been excused were directed to be present.

Former county judge and president of the Bar Association, Andrew J. Cook, was among the prominent Ulster county lawyers present in court Monday and was among the first to offer his congratulations and good wishes to Judge Conway. The judge replied that he was glad to note that Judge Cook's health had improved sufficiently to permit him to be present and expressed the hope that the recovery soon might be complete and that he would regain the vigor that has always marked his actions.

Master Is Named By Rondout Lodge

Abrynn Street Man Elected Head of Masonic Unit

Richard W. Heffernan of 74 Abrynn street, who had served Rondout Lodge, No. 343, E. & A. M., as its master during 1940, was elected master for 1941 at a meeting of the lodge held Monday evening in the Masonic Temple. The meeting was also marked by the official visit of the district deputy grand master of the Greene-Ulster Masonic district.

The election of a master last evening was held under special dispensation of Grand Master Turner, of the Grand Lodge of Masons of the state. The election was called because Charles P. Keator, who had been elected master at the annual convocation in December had been forced to decline to serve, owing to ill health.

District Deputy Edward Henderson of Catskill was accompanied on his official visit to the lodge by a delegation of 20 Master Masons of the Catskill Lodge. The district deputy delivered an interesting address and told the work that had been planned for the coming year.

Following the communication a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Lutheran Dartballers Set Pace in Men's Club League

League Leaders Have Edge of Four Full Games Over Congregationalists; Two Are Tied for Third

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

Trinity Lutheran dropped two games in the Men's Federation Dartball League to Hurley last week but managed to retain first place with an average of .750. The Congregationalists, four games back, are in second place. Hurley and Clinton Avenue are tied for third.

While the Lutherans were on the short end of the score the fast-breaking Congregationalists were managing to make a good try of first place. Last week the down-trodden Lutherans won four games and lost two. Two wins over the First Baptist club and Trinity Methodist.

St. James failed to keep its place in the loop by dropping to seventh place. The club lost two games to Port Ewen.

Glenford and Port Ewen kept on going and are now tied with 20 victories and 16 setbacks. The second last week of the schedule will be played this week, and once again there's a possibility that a change in the standings will be noted after the contests have been played. Last night Clinton Avenue and the Congregationalists met.

Other important games will bring together Lake Katrine, Glenford and Trinity Lutheran, Hurley and Ulster Park. The remainder of the schedule includes First Baptist at Trinity Methodist Wednesday evening, Fair Street at Wurts Street Baptist and Presbyterians at Woodstock. St. James has drawn a bye.

Complete results of the games played last week: Port Ewen 2, St. James 1; Glenford 2, Lake Katrine 1; Hurley 2, Trinity Lutheran 1; Presbyterians 2, Ulster Park 1; Fair Street 2, Woodstock 1; Clinton Avenue 2, Wurts Street 1; Congregationalists 2, First Baptist 1. With only two more weeks left of play in the circuit the outlook for the Lutherans appears to be bright. The Lutherans may run up against some trouble with Glenford but figures not to be pressed too much by Port Ewen next week.

Following are the standings:

Trinity Lutheran	27	9	.750
Congregationalists	23	13	.630
Hurley	22	14	.610
Clinton Avenue	22	14	.610
Glenford	20	16	.550
Port Ewen	20	16	.550
St. James	21	18	.530
Fair Street	19	17	.520
Lake Katrine	19	17	.520
First Baptist	19	20	.490
Wurts St. Baptist	16	20	.440
Trinity Methodist	14	22	.380
Ulster Park	12	24	.330
Woodstock	10	26	.270
Presbyterians	9	27	.250

Nine Nuns Encircle Mad Dog in School Yard

New York, Feb. 4 (AP)—Nine nuns held a mad dog at bay for several minutes in the crowded yard of Sacred Heart Parochial School, West New Brighton, Staten Island, yesterday, after the animal had inflicted five bites on the leg of a girl student.

Crowds of some 100 pupils attracted the sisters' attention, and they formed a cordon around the dog until police lassoed it.

The victim, Virginia Geary, 11, was reported in good condition in St. Vincent's Hospital.

Decoy Aids Hunters

Pratt, Kas. (AP)—The state fish and game department lends horned toads to crowd hunters. The department finds that crows, if they spot a toad on a fence post, will drop all natural caution and dive for it. Shooting them is easy then, say the experts.

'Standing Room Only' Sign Is Out for Gallery in House

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—The "S. R. O." sign is out for the house debate on the British aid bill.

Interest among galleryites, in fact, was greater than among house members. Although the legislation has been called unprecedented and the debate was expected to make congressional history, the number of congressmen present on the floor yesterday fluctuated between 100 and 200 out of a house membership of 435.

When the gavel rapped for adjournment only a corporal's guard of six Democrats and 11 Republicans could be counted on the all but deserted floor.

The crowds, however, stood in line all yesterday afternoon awaiting admittance to the galleries, and there was every indication that the number of visitors would be as great throughout the week.

Before the large scale exodus preceding adjournment, those representatives who settled down in the semi-circular rows of black leather seats to follow the debate paid close attention. Representative Cooper (D-Tenn.), presiding, seldom had to rap for order.

Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) of the foreign affairs committee, twirling his pince-nez on a black cord, conferred with Rep. Luther Johnson (D-Tex.), ranking Democratic committeeman. Johnson chewed an unlighted black cigar, laying it aside only when he made a formal plea to enact the bill.

Just across the aisle from the Democratic benches, Rep. Rish (R-N.Y.) directed the opposition forces from a table strewn with books and papers. He seldom looked up except to designate the length of time of his speakers should take.

Forstmann Estate Executors Sue A. L. Wenner-Gren

New York, Feb. 3 (Special)—

The executors of the estate of Julius Forstmann, multi-millionaire textile manufacturer, late of Branch, Ulster county, filed suit charging breach of contract in Federal District Court here today against Axel L. Wenner-Gren, wealthy Swedish industrialist who entertained the Duke and Duchess of Windsor aboard his yacht.

The executors and trustees of the estate, Mrs. Adolphe Forstmann, the widow, and Curt E. Forstmann, a son, charge in their complaint that following the testator's death on October 27, 1939, they sought to liquidate the assets, which included the palatial yacht "Orion," and entered into an agreement with Wenner-Gren on April 29, 1940, to sell the vessel for $300,000. The sale was to be consummated through transfer to a company incorporated under the Republic of Panama, known as Orion, S. A., and formed solely for the purpose of taking over the title, according to the complaint.

Wenner-Gren and his corporation refused delivery of the craft, the suit charges, and declined to pay the $300,000 or expenses in connection with the proffered delivery. Damages of $89,202 are asked as compensation for loss allegedly sustained through sale of the Orion at a lower figure and for expenses.

Mr. Forstmann, founder and chairman of the board of the Forstmann Woolen Company, of Passaic, N. J., and member of a family which had been engaged in the business in Europe since the Middle Ages, designed the interior of the Orion, which was built by the German Krupp concern in 1928.

The 335-foot twin-Diesel motorship, which boasted a swimming pool and powerful short-wave radio, was said to be the largest yacht afloat up to the time J. P. Morgan's American-made Corsair was launched. Mr. Forstmann spent considerable time aboard the vessel, in which he had been around the world, to the South Sea Islands and South America.

The society is calling not only upon its members but citizens generally to likewise petition their congressmen and senators to prevent the passage of Bill No. 1776, the un-American provisions of which have been analyzed in an article by the national chairman of the Steuben Society in the February "Steuben News."

Banks in Japan will open branches in Iraq.

Two Men Issue Bids For Their Own Sendoff

Bath, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP)—John Cox and Shirley D. Baxter issued printed invitations to the ceremony accompanying their departure today for a year of military training.

The invitations, sent to friends and government officials—including President Roosevelt—read: "Draftees John Cox and S. D. Baxter cordially invite you to attend a parade held in the honor on February 4, 1941, at 9 a. m., through Liberty street to the station."
